

Dearly Reviled, we are gathered here today to celebrate the union of Ceriblex, the Megalomaniacal Brain in a Jar, and Simaniac, the Animal Experiment Gone Horribly ~~Wrong~~ Right. While others will gather friends and family for such an occasion, we villains are those society cannot accept and thus we gather our own community; not in our own space, but trespassing in a [insert description of the location].

While we do not all share the same motives, we can all agree that these two have enriched our lives as we have enriched theirs. Whether we whisper evil thoughts into Ceriblex's mind like the maid of honor Demonica, or we share Simaniac's hatred of humanity like the best man Killer Cock, we all have a place in each other's crusade against the status quo that leaves no place for us. So we are here to create a space so that this love can grow and bloom into a force that will plague the world for years to come.

I know as villains, our natures can easily get the better of us, but this is not a day for our own petty compulsions, but to indulge in this petty compulsion called love. As such we ask you to be on your best behavior. Each of us have made a promise to help ensure this occasion will not be derailed and we expect you to do your best to keep said promise, though we do all know mistakes happen. It does occur to me that none of us have promised to respect each other's promises, an oversight I'm sure none of us will abuse [said sarcastically]. Since we do not always interact often, we have provided the name tags you are all wearing which includes information on who we all are and what we care about. These are all known facts about each other and are absolutely true; after all, there is no need for secrets and lies among us. As we are gathering as a community of evil, this is a perfect time for you all to connect with each other, hash out old grudges, form new alliances, and of course scheme against the agents of normalcy and compromise.

Of course, over the celebration, feel free to make a toast to our newly wedded disembodied brain and bonobo nightmare. If you have some words for them, please bang a table to start a toast. Our Friend Spell Snare has cast a compulsion on us all to quiet while the toaster must share a true thought about today. Of course, what fun would it be if we don't put each other on the spot, so our friend Spell Snare has also added a compulsion on us where if anyone is handed a drink they must start a toast.

The couple has requested that the reception continues until some do-gooder shows up to ruin things; in which we of course will incinerate them, but it is a good sign that the party is over. I'm guessing that gives us about an hour. Now, with the boring shite out of the way, let's get on with what we came here for.

Ceriblex, do you take Simaniac, to have and to hold, to destroy and desecrate, in freedom or within the shackles of the Maheur Madhouse, till something greater than death forces you to part?
